

DBIA National Design-Build Student Competition

is organized by DBIA and is typically held in the fall semester. Industry professionals develop competition problems based on actual projects that have been designed and built. Student teams prepare a statement of qualification (SOQ) in 10 days in response to a realistic request for qualification (RFQ). High ranking teams then receive a request for proposal (RFP) for which they produce a proposal in 10 more days. The top three teams nationally, present their proposal at the National DBIA Convention. University of Arizona students from all undergraduate levels and from all majors with an interest in design-build are welcome to participate.
